ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

COURT OF APPEAL.

In the Matter of the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act" and in the Matter of a Reference as to the Effect of the "Hours of Work Act" to Metalliferous Mines.

REASONS FOR OPINION OF THE HONOURABLE CHIEF JUSTICE.

THE Lieutenant-Governor in Council, pursuant to the provisions of the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act," has referred to this Court for hearing and consideration the following questions:—

"1. Are the provisions of the 'Hours of Work Act' and amendments applicable to employees in mines, quarries, and metallurgical works within the meaning of the 'Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act' and to their employers and if so to what extent?"

"2. If the employees in mines, quarries or metallurgical works within the meaning of the 'Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act' have entered into a collective agreement with their employer pursuant to Order in Council P.C. 1003 of the Dominion, by which agreement the hours of work exceed forty-four hours per week, do the provisions of the 'Hours of Work Act' and amendments apply to such employees and employer while the collective agreement is in force?"

The relevant sections of the "Hours of Work Act" provide that the working-hours of an employee in any industrial undertaking shall not exceed eight in the day and forty-four in the week. The "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act" provides no person shall be employed underground or above ground in any mine for a longer period than eight hours in any twenty-four. This Act does not contain any regulation of the maximum number of hours that may be worked in the week.

The first question then raises the real issue in dispute: "Does the forty-four-hour week provision of the 'Hours of Work Act' apply to employees in metalliferous mines? Or is the only limitation upon their hours of work to be found in the 'Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act'?"

It is my opinion, subject to certain qualifications to which I shall return later, that the "Hours of Work Act" is applicable to employees in metalliferous mines and in consequence the forty-four-hour week applies thereto.

Counsel for the Mining Association contended that section 14 of the "Hours of Work Act" exempted the metalliferous mining industry from the operations of that Act. The said section 14 reads in part as follows: "The provisions of this Act shall not in any way limit or affect the provisions of . . . the 'Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act' . . ." It is clear from this phraseology that the "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act," if it contained provisions contrary to those found in the "Hours of Work Act," would then be the governing and dominant Statute, in relation to those matters wherein the conflict or inconsistency between the two Statutes might exist. But subject to certain qualifications, in my opinion there is nothing in the "Hours of Work Act" which in any way limits or affects the provisions of the "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act." While the "Hours of Work Act" does "limit or affect" the weekly hours worked by employees in metalliferous mines, that in itself does not "limit or affect" the provisions of the "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act."

The "Hours of Work Act" provides for an eight-hour day. So does the "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act." In this respect there is no conflict. The "Hours of Work Act" provides for a forty-four-hour week. The "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act" is silent on this subject. There can be no conflict on this score unless it can be said that the eight-hour day provision in the "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act" means the employer may insist upon his employees working an eight-hour day during each working-day of the week. The section in my opinion cannot be given this interpretation. It is restrictive in its meaning. The eight-hour day provision is, in other words, a limitation upon the daily working-hours of each day and is not to be regarded as carrying with it any implied and permissive provision relating to the maximum hours in each working-week. That regulation is supplied by the "Hours of Work Act." The two Statutes, generally speaking, can be read together without either affecting or limiting the provisions of the other.

That brings me to consider the qualifications I mentioned previously. By sections 3 (3), 5, 6, 11, and 12 of the "Hours of Work Act," provisions are made for a working-day of more than eight hours. These sections do "affect" the eight-hour day provisions of the "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act." In consequence, these sections are not applicable to metalliferous mines and metallurgical works.

Counsel for the Mining Association relied, too, upon subsection 3 of section 28 of the "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act," which provides that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may by regulation amend or repeal the provisions of the said Act and may from time to time "prescribe the hours of labour and employment of persons in mines, quarries, and metallurgical works."

There is nothing in the "Hours of Work Act" which, in my opinion, "affects or limits" the exercise of this jurisdiction by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. He might thereunder, for instance, by regulation extend the working-day in metalliferous mines to ten hours and the working-week to sixty hours, or alternatively he might lessen the working-day to five hours and the working-week to thirty hours. In either instance his Order would govern and, to the extent to which that power was exercised and applied (as it was for instance in relation to above-ground placer operations and limestone quarries—see Orders in Council Nos. 211 and 1098 of 1941), the provisions of the "Hours of Work Act" would cease to apply. But until regulations are made in execution of that power, it seems to me that the "Hours of Work Act" limits the working-week except as noted, namely, in above-ground placer operations and limestone quarries—cf. Labour Reference Case (1925) S.C.R. 505.

The second question for our consideration involves quite a different problem. Counsel for the Mining Association submits that by the Wartime Labour Relations Regulations (P.C. 1003) the Parliament of Canada has legislated with regard to hours of work, wages, and working conditions covering employees in metalliferous mining operations (inter alia), and that in consequence the Province has not the legislative competence to deal with these same subject-matters. I do not consider it necessary to enter upon an examination of the constitutional aspects involved in this submission because in my view P.C. 1003 contains regulations which, in pith and substance, are not in relation to those same subject-matters covered by the Provincial "Hours of Work Act." The primary intent and purpose of P.C. 1003 was to create the procedure for an orderly manner of collective bargaining. To this end provision is made for the election of representatives to negotiate and enter into agreements binding upon every employee of the industrial units concerned. These regulations, however, do not bind the employee or employer to include in the agreement any specified conditions affecting hours of work or rates of pay. There is nothing in P.C. 1003 that, for instance, would preclude an agreement calling for a sixty-hour or a thirty-hour week. From the form of the question we must assume that the mining industry, or at least units of it, have entered into collective bargaining agreements providing for a forty-eight-hour week, and it was argued that because P.C. 1003 made that an agreement binding upon all employees for a year; the forty-four-hour week provided in the subsequently enacted "Hours of Work Act" would not apply to those employees covered by such agreement. This submission means in essence that by the terms of P.C. 1003 employers and employees have the right to contract themselves out of the obligations imposed by Provincial Statute law.

I am free to concede that if by its terms P.C. 1003 wrote into negotiated agreements substantive and specific covenants covering hours of work and other conditions of employment, and used clear, mandatory, and unambiguous language in the expression of its intent to oust Provincial jurisdiction in those respects, then in that event the Dominion regulations would govern. But, in my view, P.C. 1003 deals in its true sense with procedural matters, and the parties are left free and unfettered thereby to make their own agreements. If that is so, then such agreements, when made and during their term, must be in conformity with and subject to the provisions of relevant Provincial laws, e.g. (inter alia), "Control of Employment of Children Act," the "Truck Act," Minimum Wage Acts, "Semi-monthly Payment of Wages Act," and the "Hours of Work Act." To hold otherwise would lead to chaotic conditions. For instance, one mine with a collective bargaining agreement, entered into pursuant to the terms of P.C. 1003, could operate in complete disregard for all Provincial laws relating to hours of work and conditions of employment, whereas the mine next door without such an agreement would be subject to all relevant Provincial enactments. Such a result would lead to manifest difficulties, and I must refuse to interpret P.C. 1003 in that light unless driven to it by intractable language in the Order itself. That language, in my opinion, cannot be found therein, and in consequence its intent to oust relevant Provincial law cannot be read into its provisions by implication. In my view, therefore, P.C. 1003 and the "Hours of Work Act" can be read together, each applicable in its own legislative sphere.

To sum up then, I would answer the questions submitted as follows:—

As to Question 1: Yes, with the exceptions of sections 3 (3), 5, 6, 11, and 12 thereof, and subject to the extent to which section 28 of the "Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act" has been or may be amended by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council by regulations inconsistent with the provisions of the "Hours of Work Act."

As to Question 2: Yes.

COURT OF APPEAL.

In the Matter of a Reference as to the Application of the "Hours of Work Act," being Chapter 122, R.S.B.C. 1936, as amended, to the Employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at the Empress Hotel, Victoria.

REASONS FOR THE OPINION OF THE HONOURABLE MR. JUSTICE ROBERTSON.

PURSUANT to the "Constitutional Questions Determination Act," His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has referred to this Court for hearing and consideration the matters set out in an Order in Council of the 21st day of September, 1946, which in part is as follows:—

"Order of Reference."

"That Canadian Pacific Railway Company, a Corporation incorporated by the Statutes of the Dominion of Canada, has constructed, owns and operates lines of railway extending continuously from Saint John, New Brunswick, to Vancouver, British Columbia, and also numerous branch lines extending into and connecting with railway lines in the United States of America. The Company owns and operates lines of steamships plying between Vancouver and Victoria and Seattle, in the State of Washington. The said Company also leases and operates the lines of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company, running from Courtenay to Victoria.

"The lines of railway and branch lines of the said Company were by 46 Victoria Chapter 24, Section 6 of the Statutes of the Dominion of Canada, declared to be works for the general advantage of Canada.

"The said Company has further, for the purpose of its lines of railway and steamships and in connection with its said business, built the Empress Hotel at Victoria, which it operates for the comfort and convenience of the travelling public. The hotel is available for the accommodation of all members of the public, as a public hotel. The said hotel caters to public banquets and permits the use of its hotel ballroom for local functions, for reward.

"The property upon which the said hotel is built is not contiguous to property used by the Company for its line of railway, and is not a terminus for its railway line or steamships.

"The Company has owned and operated the said hotel for a period of thirty-eight years, and the same provides accommodation for large numbers of travellers and tourists from Canada, the United States of America and elsewhere, having five hundred seventy-three rooms. The operation of the hotel is a means of increasing passenger and freight traffic upon the Company's lines of railway and steamships.

"The Company owns and operates other hotels elsewhere in Canada for like purposes.

"There is a catering department in the hotel wherein the Company employs persons to prepare and serve meals.

"The Company also employs hotel clerks, book-keepers and other persons to do clerical work at the hotel.

"Pursuant to Section 6 of the Wartime Labour Relations Regulations being P.C. 1003 passed by Governor-General in Council by Order dated March 16, 1945, the War Labour Relations Board (National) certified to all parties concerned that the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers, Empress Division No. 276, and the bargaining representatives named in the order are the properly chosen bargaining representatives for the employees of the Empress Hotel, except employees specifically named in said Order.

"Following certification of the bargaining representatives and pursuant to the said Order-in-Council P.C. 1003 a collective agreement was negotiated by the said representatives and the Company and was duly executed by the parties thereto. The said agreement became effective September 1st, 1945, for a period of one year thereafter, subject to termination on thirty days' notice in writing from either party. By the said agreement, rates of pay, hours of work, and other terms and conditions of employment of the employees affected by the said agreement, are fixed for the period of the said agreement. No notice of termination has been given by either party to said agreement. A copy of said agreement is annexed hereto as Schedule A.

"And to recommend that pursuant to the provisions of the 'Constitutional Questions Determination Act,' there be referred to the Court of Appeal the following question for hearing and consideration: Are the provisions of the 'Hours of Work Act,' being Chapter 122 of the 'Revised Statutes of British Columbia, 1936,' and amendments thereto, applicable to and binding upon Canadian Pacific Railway Company in respect of its employees employed at the Empress Hotel, and if so, to what extent?"

The Attorney-General for British Columbia submits that the "Hours of Work Act" (which, in short, provides, generally, a workman may not work more than eight hours in one day and more than forty-four hours in a week) is valid legislation under the exclusive jurisdiction of the Legislative Assembly of the Province (later called "the Province") under head 13 of section 92 of the "British North America Act"; that it is not "truly railway legislation"; that if the "Hours of Work Act" (later referred to as "the Act") be held to be not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Province, but to be "truly ancillary to railway legislation," the Parliament of Canada (later called "the Dominion") and the Province have overlapping jurisdiction in this respect; and the Dominion, not having exercised its power, the field is clear for the Province, and therefore the Act is valid.

Counsel for the Canadian Pacific Railway (to which it will be convenient to refer later as "the Company") argues that section 8 of chapter 52, Statutes of Canada, 1902 (to be later referred to as the "1902 Act"), is truly railway legislation and that under the circumstances set out in the Reference the hours of work of employees of the Empress Hotel is within the exclusive control and jurisdiction of the Dominion, and the Act can have no application to it.

Alternatively, he submits that if legislation as to the hours of work in the Empress Hotel is "clearly ancillary to railway legislation" the Dominion has legislated (see s. 287 of the "Railway Act," R.S.C. 1927, c. 170), and such legislation must prevail over the Act. In any case, he further says that the collective agreement referred to in the Reference is validated by virtue of Regulation No. 8 of the Wartime Labour Relations P.C. 1003, passed under the provisions of the "War Measures Act" and made applicable to British Columbia by the "Wartime Labour Regulation Act," being chapter 18 of the Statutes of British Columbia, 1944. This regulation provides in part that "a collective agreement negotiated by such representatives shall be binding on every employee in the specified unit of employees."

There is no doubt that the lines of railway operated by the Company are under the exclusive jurisdiction and control of the Dominion as the effect of subsection 10 of section 92 of the "British North America Act" is to transfer the excepted works mentioned in subheads (a), (b), and (c) of it into section 91. See City of Montreal v. Montreal St. Ry. (1912) A.C. 333 at p. 342. "Railway legislation" strictly so called belongs to the Dominion—

Tennant v. Union Bank of Canada (1894) A.C. 31; Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. v. Bonsecours (1899) A.C. 367 at 372-3. Any such Federal legislation must strictly relate to railway-lines—A.G. for Canada v. A.G. for B.C. (1930) A.C. 111 at 118—subject to this: that matters which would otherwise be within the legislative competence of the Province but are necessarily incidental to effective legislation by the Dominion upon a subject of legislation expressly enumerated in section 91 are within the legislative competence of the Dominion. With reference to the latter, however, the Dominion and the Province have "overlapping" jurisdictions. It was put this way by Lord Dunedin in Grand Trunk Ry. v. A.G. for Canada (1902) A.C. 65 at 68: "First, that there can be a domain in which provincial and Dominion legislation may overlap, in which case neither legislation will be ultra vires, if the field is clear; and secondly, that if the field is not clear, and in such a domain the two legislations meet, then the Dominion legislation must prevail." See also In re Silver Brothers, Ltd. (1932) A.C. 514 at 520: La Compagnie Hydraulique de St. Francois v. Continental Heat and Light Co. (1909) A.C. 194; Crown Grain Company, Limited v. Day (1908) A.C. 504 at 507.

The Dominion has exclusive legislative jurisdiction and control to pass legislation which is "truly railway legislation." It also has power to pass legislation where such legislation is "truly ancillary to railway legislation." See G.T. Ry. v. A.G. for Canada, supra. Primarily legislation dealing with property and civil rights in the Province is within the jurisdiction of the Provinces. See In the matter of Legislative Jurisdiction over Hours of Labour (1925) S.C.R. 505 at 511; followed in A.G. for Canada v. A.G. for Ontario (1937) A.C. 326 at 350.

It is to be observed that it is only the "lines of railway" of the Company, not its undertaking, which have been declared to be for the general advantage of Canada; and that a declaration that a railway is for the general advantage does not transfer to the Dominion power to legislate over matters not necessary to the railway. See Wilson vs. E. & N. (1922) 1 A.C. 207. The word "undertaking" might include the Company's hotels, but even if that word had been used, it would not have been conclusive.

It is now necessary to consider the 1902 legislation with reference to hotels to determine into which class it falls, that is, the class of truly railway legislation or that of "truly ancillary to railway legislation."

Section 8 of chapter 52 of the 1902 Act authorizes the Company "for the purposes of its railway and steamships and in connection with its business to build hotels at such points or places along any of its line of railways and lines operated by it, or at points or places of call of any of its steamships, and to carry on business in connection therewith . . ." (The italics are mine.) Prior to this Act the Company had no express power to build and operate hotels. Hotels are not mentioned in the "Railway Act."

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company was incorporated to construct and operate "lines of railway." The Dominion's powers are restricted to lines of railway mentioned in subsection 10 of section 92. What was the meaning of these words in 1867 when the "British North America Act" was passed? We have not been referred to any decision upon this point.

Webster's Imperial Dictionary (1913), page 1365, defines "railroad" as "A road or way having parallel lines of steel rails spiked to cross-ties, and at a certain variable distance from each other, called the gauge; designed for the advantageous and economical passage of vehicles used in the transportation of freight, passengers, etc. The word 'railroad' is used in the United States in preference to the word

'railway,' the latter being the word used in England. The word 'railway' is frequently used in the official title of roads in this country."

In Volume 8 of Murray's Oxford Dictionary the definition, in part, of "railroad" states: "It is defined to be a road or way laid with rails on which the wheels or waggons containing heavy goods are to run."

The words "lines of railways" connecting two Provinces seem to point primarily to the rails and the right-of-way. Again, the words in section 8 of the 1902 Act "along any of its lines of railway" seem to indicate that the railway mentioned in the section is primarily the right-of-way and the rails.

I do not suggest this is their entire meaning. I think that whatever is absolutely necessary for the physical use of the railway is to be treated as part of the line of railway. This would include such things as roundhouses, stations, rolling-stock, equipment, and all other things necessary for the operation of a railway. I would not include the Empress Hotel in this category.

I think the hotel is an adjunct to the railway company, "necessary for convenient business purposes." It is one of the "merely ancillary conveniences to be used in connection therewith"—to quote language used in Lancashire & Yorkshire Ry. v. Liverpool Corporation (1915) A.C. 152 at pages 183 and 192. No one would suggest that an hotel as such is a railway. I fail to see how the fact that it is built for the "purposes" of a railway makes it part of a railway. In fact, the language of section 8 "for the purposes of its railway and in connection with its business" suggest that it is something apart from the railway itself. The Court of Appeal in Saskatchewan had to consider the meaning of the word "railway" contained in an exemption section of a Provincial railway taxation Act in In re Canadian Pacific Railway Company and Rural Municipality of Lac Pelletier (1944) 3 W.W.R. 637. The judgment of the majority of the Court was delivered by Macdonald, J.A. He pointed out at page 645 that in certain sections of said chapter 170 the word "railway" is used in a restrictive sense, i.e., meaning the way or road, notwithstanding the wider meaning given to the word in the interpretation section, viz., section 2 (21). At page 648 he said that he doubted that everything necessary for a railway could be held to be part of a railway, even when "railway" was used in its widest sense. At the same page he further says that the words "required for the railway" referring to certain materials, indicate to him that these materials are not part of the railway. For these reasons I think the hotel is not part of the line of railway and therefore not within the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of the Dominion.

Counsel for the Company alleges that the Dominion has legislated with regard to hours of work by virtue of said section 287, subsection (j), under which the Company may make orders and regulations, as follows:—

"(j.) limiting or regulating the hours of duty of any employees or class or classes of employees, with a view to the safety of the public and of employees."

Apart from the fact that this legislation is not a general power to regulate hours of duty, but only to regulate with a view to safety, I think it is not an exercise by the Dominion of its power. The section merely gives the power to the Board, but the Board has not exercised it. Merely authorizing another body to deal with the question is not, in my opinion, an exercise of the right. See 1925 S.C.R. 505 at 511, supra.

As to the argument based upon regulation 8 as to the validation of the contract, I refer to the opinion of the Chief Justice upon this point certified in In the Matter of the "Constitu- tional Questions Determination Act" and in the Matter of a Reference as to the Effect of the "Hours of Work Act" to Metalliferous Mines, with which I respectfully agree.

As I think the field is clear I would answer this question in the affirmative. I say, in addition, that the whole Act applies.

REASONS FOR THE OPINION OF THE HONOURABLE MR. JUSTICE O'HALLORAN.

In this Reference the Court of Appeal is asked to determine whether the Provincial "Hours of Work Act" applies to employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in the Empress Hotel at Victoria. The hotel is owned and operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for the purposes of its railways and steamships in connection with its business and as part of its transportation system.

In the view I must take, with deference, the construction, maintenance, and operation of the Empress Hotel forms an integral part of the "works and undertakings" of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company within clause (c) of head 10 of section 92 of the "British North America Act." I conclude accordingly that Provincial hours of work legislation, in so far as it affects Company employees in the Empress Hotel, will operate in principle and in practical effect as if it concerned, for example, dining-car employees on Company trains; and hence, in its true nature and effect, it is "Dominion railway legislation" exclusively within the legal competence of the Dominion, and see City of Montreal v. Montreal Street Railway (1912) A.C. 333 at 342 and the Radio Reference (1932) A.C. at 314-17 and cf. Atty.-Gen. for Canada v. Atty.-Gen. for B.C. (1930) A.C. at 118.

I entertain no doubt that factually the Empress Hotel is an integral link in the world ship and rail transportation system of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, which operates a trans-Canada railway connecting with its steamship lines on the Atlantic to the British Isles and European points, and on the Pacific (until war interruption) to Asiatic points, including Japan, Hong-Kong, Manila, and Honolulu, as well as Alaska and British Columbia coastal points. The Empress Hotel is an integral link in that chain of rail and steamship services. That it is an essential part of the "works and undertakings" of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is conceded in the admitted facts contained in the Order in Council submitting this Reference to the Court. It is recited in part therein: "The said Company has further, for the purpose of its lines of railway and steamships and in connection with its said business, built the Empress Hotel at Victoria, which it operates for the comfort and convenience of the travelling public. . . ." And also: "The Company has owned and operated the said hotel for a period of thirty-eight years, and the same provides accommodation for large numbers of travellers and tourists from Canada, the United States of America, and elsewhere, having five hundred seventy-three rooms. The operation of the hotel is a means of increasing passenger and freight traffic upon the Company's lines of railway and steamships."

Although the Canadian Pacific Railway by section 6 of chapter 24 of the Statutes of Canada, 1883 ("The Consolidated Railway Act, 1879," as then amended), was declared to be a work for the general advantage of Canada within the meaning of clause (c) of head 10 of section 92; nevertheless, it seems to be said that cannot include the Empress Hotel (1) because section 6 of the said Act of 1883 is confined to "lines of railway," and (2) the Canadian Pacific Railway Company did not at that time, nor until section 8 of chapter 52 of the Statutes of Canada, 1902 ("The Canadian Pacific Railway Company Act, 1902"), receive specific power to build and operate hotels as part of its transportation system.

Dealing first with section 6 of the Act of 1883, I am of the opinion that it is not restricted literally to the "line of rails," but includes the entire works and undertakings of the transportation system, that is to say, everything involved in the transportation of passengers and freight in a modern, convenient and efficient manner, including of course all manner of services which the travelling public expect and demand.

In the first place, the expression "such works" in clause (c) of head 10 of section 92, when read with the opening words of head 10, in my view denotes the works and undertakings (and see the Radio Reference (1932) A.C. at 314) referred to in clause (a) and clause (b) of head 10. When related to "lines of railway" in clause (a), the latter is found to embrace "and other works and undertakings." That is to say, the word "and" as there used in clause (a) is not a word of delimitation in the sense of "or" to make "other works and undertakings" something apart from "lines of railway." On the contrary, as I read it, "and" is there used to include with the "line of rails" such other works and undertakings as are found essential to the efficient operation of the railway as a trans-continental transportation system. In short, I am led to regard "such works" in clause (c) of head 10 to mean such works and undertakings in a sense wide enough to include the Empress Hotel which factually is an integral part of the works and undertakings of the Canadian Pacific Railway transportation system. I think this view is supported also by the opening lines of section 6 of the Act of 1883, supra.

In the second place, I find it difficult to read the term "lines of railway" in section 6 of the Act of 1883 as limited to the "line of rails." Reading the whole of section 6, it seems that the context of "lines of railway" is unfavourable to its use in a purely literal sense, but points rather to its employment in a more flexible and expansive sense, that is to say, to include the works and undertakings of the railway system. This appears to be confirmed by section 306 of "The Railway Act," chapter 29 of the Statutes of Canada, 1888, which does not confine the declaration for the general advantage of Canada to "lines of railway." It declares the Intercolonial Railway, the Grand Trunk Railway, the Canadian Pacific Railway, etc. to be works for the general advantage of Canada. The most reasonable construction of section 306 to my mind (when read with clause (c) of head 10) is that Parliament intended thereby to declare the works and undertakings of the named railway companies to be for the general advantage of Canada.

That Parliament never intended the language of head 10 of section 92 to receive a rigid and purely verbal construction seems to be indicated by the interpretation Parliament, in section 6 of the Act of 1883, placed upon the words "although wholly situated within the Province" as found in clause (c) of head 10. Quite obviously the Intercolonial Railway Company, the Grand Trunk Railway Company, and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company were not literally "wholly situate" within any one

Province when they were declared to be for the general advantage of Canada in 1883 and 1888. Nevertheless, it is plain that rigid and purely verbal construction was not then accepted, and it seems too late now, after the lapse of sixty-four years, to favour a mode of interpretation of clause (c) which Parliament declined to adopt in the Act of 1883. If plain confining words in clause (c) like "although wholly situate within the Province" were thus amplified by Parliament in 1883, there is little to be said in my judgment in favour of a submission that the word "works" in clause (c), in itself a term importing wide generality, should be unaccountably reduced and limited to mean the "line of rails" only.

In the first line of head 10 of section 92, the words "works and undertakings" are used as descriptive of a genus. Unfortunately, in clause (a) and clause (c) of head 10 the word "works" is inadroitly used in the sense of a subordinate classification of the genus "works and undertakings." Likewise, in "The Consolidated Railway Act, 1879" (chapter 9 of the Statutes of 1879) by section 5 (4), "the undertaking" is described to mean "the railway and works, of whatever description, by the Special Act authorized to be executed"; and by section 5 (16) "the railway" is described to mean "the railway and the works by the Special Act authorized to be constructed."

We were not referred to a statutory definition of "works" in relation to railways. It seems to be used indiscriminately as a genus in some places and as a subordinate classification of a genus in other places. But in the opening lines of section 6 of the Act of 1883, which describes certain "works and undertakings" such as the Canadian Pacific Railway to be works for the general advantage of Canada, I must conclude the term "works" was used in its generic sense and not as a subordinate classification confined to the "line of rails." The contextual background in my opinion forces "lines of railway" therein to mean the railway as a transportation system and everything that goes with it in the sense of the generic words "works and undertakings."

"Undertakings" is a word of wide meaning. At the time the Act of 1883 was passed, it had already become a word of art to some extent by the definition found in "The Consolidated Railway Act of 1879," to which I have already referred. "Works," as already stated, does not seem to have been given any statutory definition in relation to railways. That lack of statutory definition could be explained by a desire to keep its meaning as wide and flexible as possible. Before turning to a standard dictionary, it is noted that the plural "works" is used in head 10 of section 92, while both the plural "works" and the singular "work" are used in section 6 of the Act of 1883, although perhaps any difficulty in the latter respect may have been cured by the use of the plural "works" in section 306 of "The Railway Act of 1888."

However that may be, if we turn to a standard dictionary, such as Webster's New International Dictionary, 1934 (and which it is observed the then current edition was resorted to by the Judicial Committee in City of Victoria v. Bishop of Vancouver Island (1921) 2 A.C. 384) one notes some twenty different classifications of meanings of the singular "work." But if, as I think, the word "work" in section 6 of the Act of 1883 must not be interpreted in an original singular sense, but in its secondary sense as the singular of the primary meaning of the plural "works," we arrive at the appropriate meaning, viz., "everything; especially everything possible or at one's command; all one's resources." By way of illustration, reference is there found to the slang expression "to give him the works." In my judgment "works" in head 10 of section 92, and "works" and its singular "work" in section 6 of the Act of 1883, was intended to mean everything found to be essential to the most efficient operation of a railway and steamship transportation system.

Hence in my view when the Canadian Pacific Railway was declared in 1883 to be a work for the general advantage of Canada, that was intended to include not only its "lines of rail" as such, but everything which might become essential to the transportation system in order to make it a modern, convenient, and efficient transportation system, measured in terms of the competition it would receive from other large transportation systems. To my mind, with respect, any other view is foreign to the historical setting in which the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was planned, and conceived as a great transcontinental and Imperial system, to bind together the colonies of British North America following the American Civil War, and also to provide ready access to India and the Far East after the Indian Mutiny of 1857.

It is true that the Empress Hotel was not constructed until the 1900's. But it is common knowledge the City of Victoria itself could not justify a hotel of its proportions, amenities, and facilities. It served as a connecting link between the Company's railway-lines and its steamships to the Far East. Passengers from Europe and America could await their sailings of trans-Pacific ships surrounded by comforts and conveniences of old world traffic agencies. Passengers from the Far East could "break" their sea voyage by a few days or few weeks' stay in accordance with their comfort or ship sailings from the Atlantic Coast. In more recent years, with the modern development of the tourist industry, the Empress Hotel has become a magnet for tourists from all parts of the United States and Canada. Its unique charm has drawn visitors for long and short stays from all parts of the world to the immediate advantage of the Company's rail and steamship lines.

What has been said would perhaps lose much of its force if the great bulk of the people drawn to the Empress Hotel came there commercially bent upon business in Victoria. But that is far from the situation. It may be true that during more prosperous recent years, the Empress Hotel has catered more extensively to increasing local social and commercial demands. But the undertaking of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is one single undertaking and is not a collection of separate and distinct businesses. Nor can its purely local hotel business in the Empress Hotel be satisfactorily separated from its railway and steamship business in the Empress Hotel any more than the local business and the long-distance business of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada could be separated in Toronto Corporation v. Bell Telephone Company of Canada (1905) A.C. 52 at 59.

Much might be said against the Empress Hotel being part of the works and undertakings of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company declared to be for the general advantage of Canada in 1883 and 1888, if at that time the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had not the power to build and maintain hotels as part of its transportation system. While the Company saw fit to receive this specific power by section 6 of "The Canadian Pacific Railway Company Act, 1902" (chapter 52 of the Statutes of Canada, 1902), it would seem that was a superabundance of caution to particularize general powers already possessed by the Company.

Section 17 of chapter 1 of the Statutes of Canada, 1881, which incorporated the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, made applicable "The Consolidated Railway Act, 1879" (chapter 9 of the Statutes of Canada of that year). Sections 8 and 10 of the Act of 1879 gave power:—

"[Sec. 8] To erect and maintain all necessary and convenient buildings, stations, depots, wharves and fixtures and from time to time to alter, repair or enlarge the same . . . for the accommodation and use of the passengers, freight and business of the railway.

"[Sec. 10] To construct and make all other matters and things necessary and convenient for the making, extending and using of the railway in pursuance of this Act, and of the Special Act."

It seems to follow that when the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was incorporated in 1881, it then obtained power to "erect and maintain all necessary buildings" in addition to "stations, depots, etc.," and also the power "to construct and make all other matters and things necessary and convenient for the using of the railway." That purposely general language would require to be cut down and restricted if it were held not to include the building and operation of hotels "for the accommodation and use of the passengers and the business of the railway."

In my judgment the fixing and determination of the salaries and wages, hours of work, and working conditions throughout a Dominion-wide railway and steamship service and system such as the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is a matter which relates to the general conduct, management, and efficient carrying-on of the business of the Railway Company as a whole. It is in substance a matter of railway and steamship management and not a matter of property and civil rights within each of the several Provinces of Canada. The relations established between employer and employee therein fall necessarily within the realm of railway management, which falls within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament, and see Canadian Pacific Railway Company vs. The Corporation of the Parish of Notre Dame de Bonsecours (1899) A.C. 367 at page 372; Attorney-General for Canada vs. Attorney-General for Ontario (the Fisheries case) (1898) A.C. 700, Lord Herschell at page 714; Toronto Corporation vs. Bell Telephone Company (1905) A.C. 52 at pages 57-59; Great West Saddlery Company vs. The King (1921) 2 A.C. 91 at pages 99, 100 and 117; and In re Alberta Railway Act (1913) 48 S.C.R. 9 at 36-7.

In my judgment also the fixing of hours of work of employees of a Dominion-wide undertaking such as the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is not a matter of local or Provincial concern. Considering the interests affected, it concerns the Dominion as a whole, and such being the case, legislation with respect to that subject-matter falls within the sole competence of the Dominion Parliament under section 91 to the exclusion of Provincial legislation: Attorney-General for Ontario vs. Canada Temperance Federation (1946) A.C. 193, 1946 2 D.L.R. at page 5; The Railway Act Reference (1905) 36 S.C.R. 136 at 142-4; and Madden v. Nelson & Fort Sheppard Ry. Co. et al. (1899) A.C. 626.

Having reached the foregoing conclusions, I find no occasion to consider alternative submissions advanced respecting the question asked, viz.: "Are the provisions of the 'Hours of Work Act,' being chapter 122 of the 'Revised Statutes of British Columbia, 1936,' and amendments thereto, applicable to and binding upon Canadian Pacific Railway Company in respect of its employees employed at the Empress Hotel, and if so, to what extent?"

I hereby certify accordingly to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council that my answer to the above question as submitted is in the negative.
